Word of the Week

This week's word of the week is de meaning away, from, off or apart. It comes from Latin. Examples include degrade, to break down or deteriorate. It can also mean to treat someone with disrespect. Another example is deforestation which is the clearing of forests. What other examples can you think of?

Positive Behaviour in the Community!

We've received so many positive comments and emails about your behavior in the community! 🌟 One lady shared her experience of falling off her bike outside our school and how our students showed kindness and offered help. Keep up the good work, your positive behavior is making a difference!

"I was cycling home from Angmering village when i came off my bike just outside your school. Not one young person laughed or jeered, in fact one young lady asked if i was ok and did i need any help. My husband was with me so he was able to pick me up and dust me off, fortunately i only sustained some grazes and a bruised ego!"

"Thank you to a polite kid from Angmering school: I was out jogging along on a shared footpath earlier (not the pavement) and he politely got off his bike, and pulled it to one side, so that I could continue jogging without breaking stride. I thanked him for his gentlemanly behaviour."

Career of the Week - British Sign Language Interpreter

You can become a BSL interpreter through: a university course, working towards this role or a trainee scheme. You'll need a degree or level 6 award in both British Sign Language and interpreting. You would also need an approved qualification in interpreting like: postgraduate or master's degree in interpreting or translation or a Level 6 Diploma in Sign Language Interpreting.

In your day-to-day duties you may have to: prepare before assignments by finding out about the situation and any specialist vocabulary, travel to different sites to interpret in a variety of situations, use technology to provide 'virtual' interpreting services, listen carefully to, or watch, what is said or signed, interpret what is said or signed, find the best way to express everything that is said or signed and do admin tasks like paperwork or booking appointments

You could work for an organisation that supports deaf people, or in a school or college, for example, as an educational support assistant. You could then do your British Sign Language qualifications on the job to qualify as an interpreter.

If you would like more information contact Mr Bowles (gbowles@theangmeringschool.co.uk)
